HISTORY AND LEADERSHIP

In the 1970s, Pulitzer Prize-winning composer Gian Carlo Menotti sought an American counterpart to the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, which he had founded in 1958. Looking for a city with similar charms as well as a wealth of performance spaces, Menotti settled on Charleston, relishing its intimacy, enchantment, and, in his words, “unique beauty.” With invaluable support from a young Mayor Joseph P. Riley, Jr. and College of Charleston’s then-president Theodore Stern, the Festival held its first season in 1977.

Since then, Spoleto has served as a catalyst for cultural change, aiding in Charleston’s flourishing as a top destination. Following Menotti’s departure in the early 1990s, Nigel Redden, who had previously served as General Manager from 1986 to 1991, took the helm as General Director in 1995. Under his stewardship, Redden secured Spoleto’s preeminent foothold in the international performing arts landscape through artistic commissions and the staging of US and world premieres. Locally, with support from the city and generous donors, Redden and Spoleto spearheaded the renovations of numerous performance spaces: Festival Hall, Dock Street Theatre, College of Charleston Sottile Theatre, and the Charleston Gaillard Center.

In October 2021, Mena Mark Hanna succeeded Redden as General Director, promising to continue Spoleto’s legacy of presenting exemplary, innovative work that showcases and celebrates the breadth of artistic expression while maintaining a year-round commitment to the Charleston community.

SPOLETO FESTIVAL USA ORCHESTRA

One of the country's most prestigious ensembles for young professional musicians, the Spoleto Festival USA Orchestra serves as the Festival's orchestra in residence. It accompanies Spoleto's opera selections and symphonic concerts, and smaller ensembles are selected to participate in choral, chamber, and contemporary performances.

Assembled anew each year through nationwide auditions, the Festival's Orchestra takes on a dynamic new identity with the participation of both returning and new musicians. Each musician is selected for his or her skill, artistry, and versatility, and the resulting group of talented and diverse young professionals is consistently lauded in the press.

SPOLETO FESTIVAL USA CHORUS

Led by Joe Miller, Spoleto's Director of Choral Activities, the Festival Chorus was established in 2021, building upon a long tradition of choral excellence at the Festival. For many years, students of the Westminster Choir served as Spoleto's choir in residence; vocal fellows will now stem from students and recent graduates of conservatories, colleges, and choral programs across the country.

Each of the vocal fellows is selected by Miller through nationwide auditions. The professional chorus comprises roughly 50 singers, though the number fluctuates depending on the season's repertory and needs. The singers have the opportunity to perform in major choral works, as well as in the chorus of Spoleto's mainstage operas. Select choristers perform in smaller chamber choral concerts and take part in special projects, such as Music in Time concerts.

SPOLETO ETC (ENGAGING THE COMMUNITY)

Spoletto Festival USA's founding purpose to provide a fertile ground of experimentation, exploration, and artistic learning extends far beyond its stages. Vital to the Festival's endurance are its endeavors to engage audiences across a broad spectrum. With programming that includes sending artists into schools, holding public discussions, and organizing workshops for budding artists, the Festival aims to spark connections and leave lasting impressions. Spoleto ETC comprises three avenues:

Tailored education programs to instill artistic curiosity and inspire audiences of the future.

This includes artists visiting area schools as well as students visiting Festival venues. Spoleto artists also work with independent student-focused organizations, such as the Charleston Jazz Academy and the College of Charleston's arts management program.

Community engagement programs to encourage participation and remove barriers.

This includes free discussions before the Festival (like the Salon Series and Exploring Omar) and Artist Talks during the Festival (Conversations With and Jazz Talks). Each season, Spoleto also provides more than 800 free tickets to local nonprofits through Open Stage Door and offers Azure Concerts designed for individuals with autism spectrum disorder or similar challenges.

Programs for the professional advancement of young artists and arts administrators.

This includes the Spoleto Festival USA Orchestra; the Spoleto Festival USA Chorus; and Spoleto's Apprentice Program, a short-term internship opportunity for college-age students.
